

Capping methane leaks a win-win

November 13, 2015

Capping methane leaks a win-win

Click on headline to go to original article at pbs.org.

TRANSCRIPT

GWEN IFILL: But, first, natural gas is often considered a cleaner fuel than coal. It emits about half as much carbon dioxide. But the main component in natural gas is another greenhouse gas: methane.

As special correspondent Kathleen McCleery explains, that's why both environmentalists and the energy industry are trying to find ways to capture leaks from oil and gas facilities.

November 4, 2015 by Kathleen McCleery